

HW 4 Question
Philippe Proctor

2. A user space driver doesn't require a kernel module because of the memory mapping process. The memory mapping allows user space to map to the Ethernet controller hardware registers directly bypassing the need for a kernel module.